Hi Chayse,

Before I comment on your blog, I would agree that it's difficult to decide sometimes about what to cook today. I believe cooking is not as hard but to decide. I love the idea of your heart shaped potatoes, perfect for the valentine's day! I would love to try some day as they look amazing!

Cheryl,

I read your blog, it was interesting to learn about the Brisk Teaching app and how you shared different ideas to use & engage kids in the classroom. It's interesting to know that it can work for different levels of students to make it convenient for teachers to provide feedback! Pre-made templates save teachers time, for sure!

I like to explore new digital tools that are easy and simple to use. I believe lack of knowledge or some difficult steps to use some digital apps can be challenging unless

Megan,

I enjoyed reading your blog and loved the motivation you have. I read how you kept exploring about some yoga apps and shared some yoga poses, to stretch and relax. The yoga app seems interesting, and good for beginners. I'll definitely scroll it over. Good luck for your Yoga Journey, I'm looking forward to learning more about yoga.

ock. Good luck for your next project, I'm really looking for-photography skills.

Hi Ashley,

I read your blog to know about how your photography journey is going. I really enjoyed some pictures you've shared in your blog, they were awesome! It was a huge difference in both pen pictures, but the misty tree was done nicely.

It was interesting to learn about different features about your camera and how to play around

Hi Maddy,

I think it's OK to be 'lazy' sometimes, not all the time, for sure! Personally, you feel at the moment like you're not being productive but thinking about getting your stuff done next week, spackling/sanding your walls, getting some supplies already and realising the time frame is being productive, in my opinion. I think we all need a relaxing break to get recharged sometimes!

Good luck for painting your bathroom next

I am surprised to see your backpack work done, it doesn't look like you tried for the first time. It's amazing! That Brother Machine Embroidery looks like fun. If you can understand how does it work, it would be great to create your own brand. I would love to see more about your next projects. Enjoy your

Hi Kylee,

I'm excited to see your first crocheting project; a headscarf. I am happy about how you're ready for your next week's project and planning to have your supplies in stock. Good luck for your next project, I'm really looking forward to it.
