

Guided reflective journal:

Reflection 4: Teaching, a political act?

Politics is the framework which assist in making decisions related to economical, cultural and social system of the individuals of a particular area and make them equal part of society, moreover, politics is all about making agreements between two countries, cities and people for the welfare and development of area as well as for residents. Similarly, teaching include bounding between teacher and students which assist them to learn, gain knowledge, grow and become successful in life. In addition to this, like political structure, teaching plays an important role in making exclusive environment where students from different culture, gender, socio economic background express them selves freely, feel equal, valuable and flourish.